

Battle of Vicksburg

Marsela Gutierrez

P.5

- My topic is the battle of vicksburg
- It happened from may 18, 1863 - july 4, 1863
- It was fought in and around warren county, mississippi
- It's important because it was a decisive union victory that served as a major turning point in the Civil War by giving the Union total control of the Mississippi River

- The first key event is that the union won several battles and surrounded vicksburg
- Second key is that a long siege began causing hunger and damage in the city
- The first important fact is the union forces were led by Ulysses S. Grant
- The second important fact is confederate forces were led by John C. Pemberton
- The third important fact is the victory gave the union control of the mississippi river

Causes

- Vicksburg was a key city on the mississippi river
- President abraham lincoln believed taking vicksburg was very important

Effects

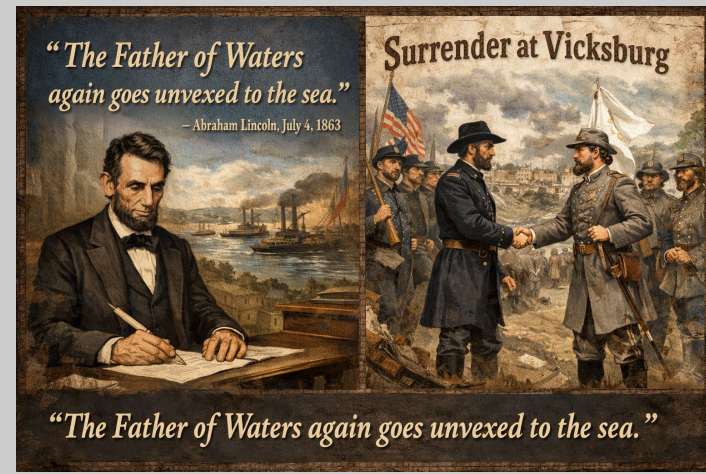

- The confederates surrendered on july 4, 1863
- The confederacy was split in two
- The union gained full control of the mississippi river

Important people involved

- Abraham Lincoln
- Ulysses S. Grant
- John C. Pemberton
- William Tecumseh Sherman

Primary Source Quote

“The father of waters again goes unvexed to the sea.”
- Abraham Lincoln wrote this on July 4, 1863, after Vicksburg surrendered and he meant that the Mississippi River was now fully controlled by the Union again

Why does this mattered? How did it affect the Civil War?

This mattered because it gave the union control of the mississippi river and it split the confederacy in two and made it harder for the south to continue fighting

How did it affect the U.S long-term?

- It affected the united states because it kept the mississippi river under US control, helping trade and travel
- It helped the union win the civil war, leading to the end of slavery and a more united country

We should remember the Battle of Vicksburg because it was a big turning point in the American Civil War. When the Union won on July 4, 1863, they gained control of the Mississippi River. This split the Confederacy in half and made it harder for them to move soldiers and supplies. The victory helped the Union move closer to winning the war and keeping the country together.
